What this playbook does

This guide gives agents a repeatable daily workflow: who to call first, how many times to attempt contact, what to update after every conversation, and what to say to move more prospects into appointments.

Designed for daily execution — not occasional inspiration.

The Operating Principles

The best prospecting teams win because they move the important work simply, visibly, and repeatably.

1 Speed creates advantage

Call Contact Requested leads immediately. The first live conversation matters most.

2 Attempts create contact

The first few attempts are rarely enough. Most contacts happen after multiple dials.

3 Reminders create trust

Follow-up wins when it is scheduled, specific, and never missed.

4 Clean records drive execution

Stage, saved search, note, and next step should be updated after every conversation.

Daily Execution Model

Prioritize

Start with the highest-intent opportunities: Contact Requested, then new leads, then attempted contacts and reminders.

Connect

Use the CINC dialer or CINC app so every outreach attempt is captured and activity stays visible.

Document

Update stage, saved search, reminders, and notes after every meaningful conversation.

Advance

Ask for the appointment. The goal is to move the prospect into a clear next step, not just have a friendly call.

What great execution looks like

Fast response, disciplined follow-up, and every contact moving to a defined next action.

The Daily Workflow

Run this sequence every business day. Complete the highest-intent activity first, then move through the rest of the queue.

1 Check Contact Requested Leads

Open Agent Launchpad → Prospecting tab. Call all Contact Requested leads within 5 minutes of notification. Speed wins appointments.

2 Dial New Leads (P1)

Work every lead that has never been dialed. Use the CINC Dialer to maximize volume. No voicemail — double dial immediately.

3 Work Attempted Contacts (P2 & P3)

Dial every lead at least 6 times before stopping attempts. Most contacts happen after the third or fourth attempt.

4 Clear Lead Reminders

Move to Follow-Up. Complete every reminder due today or overdue, then set the next follow-up before leaving the lead.

5 Clear Deal Reminders

Review transaction-related tasks due today. Address each one and set the next reminder for any deal that needs continued action.

6 Review Needs Reminder Filter

Find contacted leads missing a reminder. Add follow-up reminders so no live prospect falls through the cracks.

7 Check Trending Leads

If time remains, review leads with fresh site activity. These are strong secondary prospects once reminders are clear.

Non-negotiable daily standard: Contact Requested first. Reminders cleared every day. Every contacted lead has a next step.

Prospecting Priorities

Use this order to decide where to spend the highest-intent minutes of the day.

01

Contact Requested

Call now

These leads have raised their hand. Treat this as the highest urgency opportunity of the day.

02

New Leads (P1)

Dial today

Every new lead needs a first attempt. Use double dial before moving on.

03

Attempted Contacts

Six attempts

Keep working leads until they receive at least six total attempts.

04

Trending Leads

Secondary outreach

Recent site activity is a reason to restart a conversation after reminders are clear.

Dialing discipline

No voicemails

Skip voicemail. Call again later.

Double dial

If they do not answer, call again immediately.

6 dials minimum

Do not stop after two or three attempts.

Track activity

Use the dialer or CINC app so attempts are logged.

Set aside one dedicated hour each day for prospecting.

After Every Conversation

The call is not complete until the record is clean and the next step is scheduled.

1 Update Pipeline Stage

Move the lead to the correct stage: Attempted Contact, Contacted, Appointment Set, Active Client, Pending, or Past Client.

2 Mute Alex AI

If AI follow-up is active, mute it after live contact to avoid duplicate outreach.

3 Update Saved Search

Refine the saved search based on what you learned: area, price, timing, motivation, and property needs.

4 Set a Follow-Up Reminder

Every contacted lead must have a reminder. Do not set reminders on New Leads or Attempted Contacts until live contact is made.

5 Add a Pinned Note

Log the 5 W's — who, what, where, when, and why. Pin the note so the next action is obvious.

Pinned note template

Who: ____ | What: ____ | Where: ____ | When: ____ | Why: ____ | Next step: ____

Scripting Guide

Keep the conversation simple. Ask open-ended questions, listen, and move toward a clear appointment.

SCRIPT

Opening — New Buyer Lead

"Hey, this is [Your Name] with [Brokerage]. I noticed you were looking at homes in [Area] — are you looking to make a move in the next few months, or are you just browsing?"

SCRIPT

If They Are Browsing

"Perfect. That's exactly what the site is for. While I have you, what's prompting you to browse right now?"

SCRIPT

The Appointment Ask

"Based on what you've shared, I'd love to set up a quick 20-minute coffee or call to walk through the best options for your timeline and budget. Does [Day] at [Time] or [Day] at [Time] work better?"

SCRIPT

Previously Contacted Lead

"Hi [Name], it's [Your Name] from [Brokerage]. We spoke a little while back about your home search. Are you still looking, or has anything changed with your situation?"

I have [X] new listings that match exactly what you told me. Want me to send those over?"

Pro tips: keep them talking

Do not ask for the lead by name. Assume you reached the right person.

Avoid yes/no questions. Use open-ended questions that reveal motivation.

Let the lead talk 80% of the time. Your job is to ask and listen.

Ask about timeframe, pre-approval, renting, and selling.

Follow-Up Standards

Strong follow-up is not random. It is timed, tracked, and tied to the next best action.

Call fast

Call within five minutes of registration or Contact Requested notification.

Time block daily

Set a minimum one-hour prospecting block five days per week.

Do not stop early

Most agents quit after two or three attempts. Stay with the six-dial standard.

Ask clearly

Every qualified conversation should end with a clear appointment ask or next step.

Pipeline stages

Stage	Use when...
New Lead	No successful live contact has occurred.
Attempted Contact	A call, text, or email attempt has been made.
Contacted	A meaningful conversation happened. A next action is defined.
Appointment Set	A meeting, call, consultation, or showing is booked.
Active Client	The person is actively working with the agent.
Pending / Past Client	The transaction is under contract or the relationship is already complete.

Reminder rule: Once a lead is contacted, it should never sit without a next follow-up reminder.
